Dentistry inthe United States.

There are now about 17,000 dentists in the United States, and they pack into the teeth of the American people about a ton of pure gold and five times that amount of less precions metals (tin, silver, platinum, etc.) annually. Now, these metals are worth $1,000,000 and will take only about 350 years to hury all the coin in the United States in the graveyards, (auother feature in favor of cremation). There are 4,000,000 of artificial teeth made in the United States annually, yet only une-third of the people avail themselves of this blessing. Perfect

Something of an idea of the enormous bulk of silver accumulated in the Treasury Department may be givou by the statement that it weighs upwards of 2,000 tons of 2,000 pounds each. It would require 500 cars to transport it, allowing ten tons to the car, the ordinary car-load. No wonder the Department finds trouble to obtain storage room for the money that wont circulate. "I've no fears on the new laud's account," Mrs. Bryson answered; "but that ill-lookin' trump that had his supper in the kitchen was just goin' out of the front gate when you spoke to Nora, and he may have heard you,"

An anxious look came over the farmer's lace, and, donning his hat and taking up a stout stick, he sallied out.

The evening shades had gathered, and it was almost dark when Nora Bryson left Farmer Dutton's to return home Her path lay through a lonely wood, and sho felt a little nervous as she hurried along, starting now and then as at how you expect to support a wife?" occasional rustlo broke the stillness, and was wishing the other half safely family, and not least with Nora. Indeed, sho and the new hand got on Opera House Block, famously together. Nora, though a farmer's daughter, had a mind better trained and better stored with knowledge than many a boarding-school graduate: and George Dyer, though a farm laborer, seemed to have been an extensive and thoughtful reader-so that there poetry - they discussed them all by turns; and, we may be sure, in their numerons evening walks and talks, they found time to speak of other matters of more immediate personal concern.

George Dyer had been staying on the place nearly three months when Hiram Gooch, whose farm joined her father's came out plump and plain one day, and asked Nora would she be his wife-to which Nora as plumply and plainly answered that she wouldn't Stanford. -

At the first knowledge of this the farmer was a little vexed. Not that he thought Nora and Hiram particularly suited to each other, but then the two farms were, and Nora was an only child. But Farmer Bryson was far too kind a father to think of forcing his daughter'r inclinations

" If Nora doesn't want you for a husband," he said to lifram, when the latter laid the case before him, "I don't see how I'm to help you."

And, when Hiram hinted at the extent of a father's authority in the matter of family government, the farmer answered that, since the Declaration of Independence, he thought there were a good many things in which family government, like other governments, derived Its just powers from the consent of the governed.

WONDERS IN INVENTIONS. Important Macagories of the Last Decade.

fully prolub in important results. To any nothing of the telephone, the phonegraph, the electric light and the system of automatic and quadruplex telegraphy, ali of which have been so fully described that their principles are perfectly familiar to the general public, there have been annorous discoveries and improvements which, in their way, have brought about revolutions in the arts and sciences. Among the most important of recent discoveries are improvements in the manufacture of vulcanized Indiarubber in its various applications, which have remited in making it the best and cheapest material for superior and highly-finished combs. These combs, in flexibility and durability, are equal to the best horn and shell, and are now extensively manufactured. The principal factories for the making of rubber combs are located in Connectient. The material produced by this new process possessed peculiar qualities. It was more perfectly clustic than common caoutehone, resisted the action of the ordinary solvents of that material, was better able to resist the wear and tear of its surface and preserved its llexibility at all temperatures. Then Mr. Nelson Goodyear patented a process for solidifying rubber, making it ansceptible to any form of process of manufacture, The next invention of any importance was a pagging machine. Pegged shoes anade by hand were manufactured in large quantities a long time before the invention of this machine; but the mannfacture was, and is, confined chiefly to men's boots and shoes, and to the coarser kinds of ladios' shoer. Lynn, the great center of the manufacture of ladies' shoes, was never engaged to any extent in the manufacture of pegged shoes. The introduction of this machine largely increased the production, and, of conrae, diminished the cost of product. There have been many improvements in the stitching machine, the product originally of the mechanical genius of Elias Howe. This machine was first perfected in 1845.

A process has recently been patented in the United States by which shot is made at a low elevation by forcing a strong current of air upon it as it falls into the water. Another important use to which lead is put is the preparation of oxide of lead or white lead as a pigmeut. In this branch of the lead industry this country takes a prominent and probably a leading position, as the practice of painting dwelling houses is more common than in any other country.

The safety drum, another new invention, is a safety device which guards against accident arising from such derangement in elevator machinery, or some obstruction in the hatchway, whereby the repes may be uncoiled from ain drum of the engine, while the car remains, temporarily lodged at a greater or less distance from the bottom. It is also a perfect safeguard against the too-rapid descent of the enr. in ease the belt or any part of the gearing connected with the eugine should give way, or if run too fast by the carelessness of the operator.

Great' improvements have been made in the methods of construction used for iron safes making them impregnable to almost my appliance in use by the most expert burglars. The doors, which are generally the week point of the safe, are constructed of plates so dove-tailed and fitting correspondingly into the jambs that the wedge, the effective implement used by the burglar, is perfectly poweriess against them, while the accuracy with which they fit offers no opportunity for any crevice into which nitro-glycorine or my other explosive tinid can be introduced. The body of the safe being also constructed of alternate plates of iron, welded iron and steel, eathoulzed and decarbonized steel and caystal steel, fustened together by bolts from the inaide, effectively prevents them being forced by sledge-hammers, jimmies, jack-screws or any other burglarious in strument. Their fire-proof qualities are also secured by a filling of concrete, which makes them absolutely proof against both fire and damp. In addition to the lire-proof filling, the safes are furnished with improved combination locks, varied for each safe, many of which are supplied with an automatic rotsry movement, and consequently operated without any arbor or spindle passing through the door in the lock. rendering it impossible to pick them by any process yet invented.

In 1872 Dr. (latting invented and patented a steam plow, or earth-pulverizing machine, to be propelled by steam and animal power combined. The failure of his health and the low price of grain at that time prevented his bringing this invention lato practical use. Dr. Gatling had devoted his time and attention to improving the gun which bears his name, and the success which has attended his labors seduced him from the more congenial field of peaceful invention, Inventive talent has also been brought to bear upon soap. Several materials have been avowedly and openly mixed with soaps as improvements. The use of resin has been utilized. Silex, either as and or in the form of "water glass" or soluble glass (nitrate of sods), is one of the most common, and soaps made in this way are extremely efficient and useful, Modified soaps for various special purposes are now made by mixing limewater, dissolved alum, etc., with soap already made.

The gas was at the time turned down very low, but the men could see the insect on the bed, and, doubling a towel several times, one of them cast it over the centipede, and clutched it tightly to prevent its tocupe. One of the gentlemen was somewhat of an amateur scientist, and desired ardently to preserve the contipole as a specimen. Accordingly the captured insect was carried in the towel to the drug store. The druggist poured chloroform on the towel to stupefy the creature, and to prevent the pensibility of its escupe, and one of the clerks stood by with an uplifted club to strike it should it attempt to get off. There are few things Yankee principles, and never thourishes more beorginous than Generals and Judges in places and nuder circumstan-Viewed from the exterior the four-corco where they would not naturally be expected to speed. There is not a department in Washington, for instance, mental. It was planned by a lumitde m which there are not among the clerks architect, and whenever more room line and messengers scores of men laying claim to the title of General, Colonel, Major or Julgo, Every one who has held a commission in the army either dubs himself, or allows himself to be dubbed by his over-completent acquaintauces, an officer of high rank, and every individual who has gone through a law school or a lawyer's office becomes thereby a Judge; while here and there "Governors" are stumbled upon who are very glad to be in possession of a first or second-class clerkship. As to the lawyers and claim-agents who abound in the city there is hardly one of them who does not preface his name with the titio measurement the letter n, that being the cages and grind-stones and trace-chains of Judge or General, and the same ridienlens custom pervades all classes of society. I do not mean to suggest that this is peculiar to Washington. It is a national rather than a local weakness, No pickpocket or rowdy can appear before the Tombs Criminal Court in New York unless he has his interest looked after by a Colonel or a General; and in the newspaper reports of the more-important law cases it is next to impossible to nuderstand who it is that is administering, and who they are who distance at which a letter of any partic- dyes, imligo, copperas, logwood, qui- are attempting to mislead justice, for all ular size can be seen does not afford a nine and cough medicines, and he makes the counsel who do not affect military guide to it, for it does not correspond at no mistakes. Why should that high sense of honor which is characteristic of army officers be exposed to the possibility and probability of being daily offended by misconduct on the part of thousands of irand throw out all in which letters are a call for three nntmegs or a card of responsible persons throughout the country who wear titles to which they have no right, or why should our judieinry be lowered to the level of attorneys and pettifuggers? A Colonel is a military officer just as a Judge is a judicisl officer, and no layman has a right to assume either of those titles. Very few know just what a barbecue the matter is printed 'solid,' the eyea a four-corners store and rule whole counmeans. Well, if you want to see one in all its giory go to Maryland. The barbecne ground is generally located near a line spring. Around its clear waters are hnng a secre of gourd dippers. Starting early in the morning we find the campua already humming like a hive. Long, broad ditches have been dug, and these are thorred with coals a foot deep, over which are hid great spits, and on these every effort to arouse him, but in vain. Further on beyond these trenches are Subsequently one of his fellow operators. huge carcasses of hogs and bullocks, great log fires, which are kept constantly blazing, so that at any time the ditches may be replenished with coals. Such hissing and crackling as there is above these immense fires as the mounting flames curl and wreath themselves into great volumes of smoke | Scores of coaches, buggies and wagons are pouring in, filled with a laughing, jolly crowd, all intent upon a day's frolic. Families come on horseback, while not infrequently can be seen three riders on one mule, Gayly-dressed ladies come with their escorts, and negroes pour in on foot. The whole country seems to have entered into the frolic. Down by the great boiling kettles near the spring the darkies are dressing shoats, sheep and great beeves. Every animal is left whole, but is split to the backbone. Loug tables are spread beneath the pines. The horn is blown for dinner. As the band strikes up a lively air the people wind in a long, fantastic line in and out smong the trees to the wide spread tables beneath. Babies crow and prattle, mothers chat together, while old people lind they have not forgotten how to hugh. Certainly nothing can
